

For God alone my soul must wait in silence;

from him alone shall my salvation come.
The LORD alone, my rock and mighty fortress,
he is my hope, I will not be undone!

My enemies rejoice in my frail weakness;
'a feeble wall, he'll topple in the storm!'
With vicious lies they gladly plot my downfall,
their pious smiles hide hearts of bitter scorn.

*O LORD my God I wait for you in silence;
from you alone shall my salvation come!
You alone, my rock and mighty fortress,
you are my hope, I will not be undone!*

A humble man lives only for a moment,
the great ones breathe and likewise soon are gone;
Set not your heart on riches, vast, but fleeting,
trust not your future to a way forlorn!

*O LORD my God I wait for you in silence;
from you alone shall my salvation come!
You alone, my rock and mighty fortress,
you are my hope, I will not be undone!*

Once God has spoken; twice his voice affirmed this:
his is the power, and his the steadfast love!
For he will judge me in his perfect justice,
and will repay to each as they have done.

*The LORD alone, my saving hope and glory!
A mighty rock and refuge is our God!
Trust in him, forever, all you peoples,
pour out your heart to him, for he is God!*

*The LORD alone, my saving hope and glory!
A mighty rock and refuge is our God!
Trust in him, forever, all you peoples,
pour out your heart to him, for he is God!*

William J.U. Philip
From Psalm 62
Tune: You Raise Me Up